AUSTIN, TEXAS

Located in Central Texas on the eastern edge of the American Southwest, Austin is the capital of the state of Texas, the Lone Star State. Austin seats in the most populous city of Travis County, with portions extending into Hays and Williamson counties. The City of Austin is the 4th largest city in Texas with a population of 1,027,937 as of July 1, 2025. Austin is nationally recognized as a great place to live due in part to its diverse and eclectic population, as well as its promotion of a year-round outdoor active lifestyle. The city is named for Stephen F. Austin, the “Father of Texas.”

Austin Industries is one of the nation's largest, most diversified construction companies. With more than 7,000 employee-owners, Austin Industries provides civil, commercial, and industrial construction services through the expertise of our operating companies: Austin Bridge & Road, Austin Commercial, and Austin Industrial. The Austin Regional Manufacturing Association, founded in 2013, works to insure that manufacturing remains among the most productive contributors to the regional economy through advocacy, workforce development, and networking. Austin is also the headquarters for The Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT), which operates the state's independent electric grid and manages the deregulated market for 75 percent of Texas.

Electric vehicle and battery manufacturing is underway at Tesla's Gigafactory Texas, a 10 million square foot factory on 2,400 acres in southeast Austin. Austin was designated the global headquarters of Tesla in 2021. NXP Semiconductors, a world leader in automotive solutions, has its U.S. headquarters, design, and two wafer manufacturing facilities in Austin. ARM, Cirrus Logic, Infineon, Samsung, and Skyworks Solutions are a few of the other chip companies working on automotive applications in Austin.

Fueled by Austin's young, highly skilled workforce and strong university and private sector partnerships, the region is a national leader in semiconductor and electronics research, development, and advanced manufacturing. Approximately 150 semiconductor and related companies employ more than 60,000 professionals locally. Aerospace, aviation, and supporting industries add another 12,000 employees, all within a broader technology ecosystem that exceeds 176,000 workers.
